The Electrical Melting Company

The Electrical Melting Company is an Edinburgh-based band playing original new music and covers from late 60s. Their setlist varies but may contain songs from Syd's Pink Floyd, Jefferson Airplane, the Velvet Underground, the Byrds and Nancy Sinatra.

History:

The current incarnation of EMC was formed in 2024 and has released two singles: "Suburban Bourbon Man" and "Insane", available on most streaming platforms and as physical CD. A new album "Time Flies" is currently in the pipeline, with several of its songs ready to play at the next gig.

TIME FLIES

The band was founded by two members of the legendary Edinburgh band "The Spooks", known for their over-the-top 60s retro shows at their Bikini Club venue in the late 80s and early 90s. Scott Fraser, known in the Spooks as Ron Doo Ron, was the main singer and rhythm guitarist. James (Pod) Kennedy was bass player Peach McNulty. For EMC Scott has moved onto bass, while Pod handles both lead and rhythm guitar alternately attacking a Gretsch semi-acoustic and electric 12-string for songs which demand that 60s jangle.

Graham Bodenham was also a friend and an integral part of the Edinburgh music scene during the years the Spooks were active, and later became known as the powerhouse drummer in bands such as "Little Love and the Friendly Vibes" and "The Ringos". Today he enjoys the status of being simultaneously the oldest-in-age and youngest-in-appearance band member.

Lineup:

Scott Fraser: Bass and Vocals

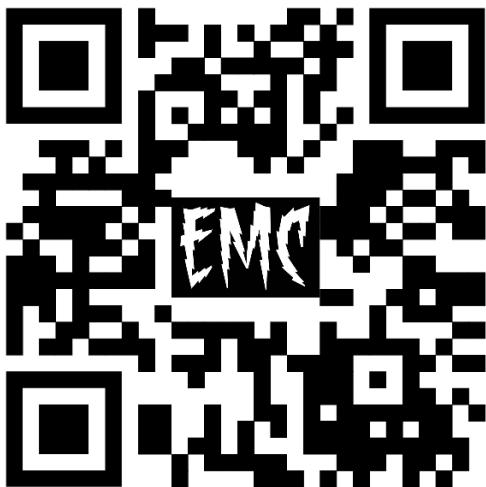

Pod Kennedy: Guitar and Vocals

Graham Bodenham: Drums and Vocals
